#SIGA WOMEN: HOW TO BALANCE THE BOARD IN SPORT

A 2019 independent survey carried out by SIGA demonstrates that the percentage of women's representation at the highest executive organs of the 32 internationally recognised sports federations was merely 18.3%. This means we still have a long way to go to achieve true diverse representation within the governance of Sport! In pursuance of its efforts to enhance good governance at all levels of Sport, SIGA is committed to promoting a gender equity governance culture, where access to leadership roles in sports organisations is determined, not by gender, race or any other discriminatory factor, but by merit. This panel will help illuminate the ideal roadmap for tangible progress by shining a light on key issues, such as the current barriers women face in shattering the gender glass ceiling in the sports industry, the important role that men, as well as women, in leadership positions can play and SIGA's 2020/2021 Global Agenda on Female Empowerment and Leadership in Sport.

SPORT INTEGRITY: VISION 2030

We are all witnessing a transformational moment in the History of global Sport. The challenge we all face is how to best navigate these uncertain times and ensure sport can emerge from this period of uncertainty and instability as quickly and as strongly as possible. The need for global leadership and concerted action has never been greater or more urgent. The entire sport movement, governments, international organisations, athletes, fans and all sports stakeholders need to adapt, if sport is to survive this unprecedented crisis. However, should survival be all that we aspire to at this time of potential rebirth? Can the post-COVID environment also provide us all with a catalyst for a better, healthier, integrity-rich sporting eco-system? What role should Sport play in the quest for social and racial equality? What is the vision that we should aim to accomplish by the end of the current decade? What lessons have we learned from the past 10 years' failures and progresses that can help Sport Integrity to be at the podium in 2030? How can we ensure that this opportunity is not wasted, and Sport Integrity reaches the podium?

To address these vital issues, we are proud to present a series of high-profile, forward-thinking and action-oriented initiatives, including a global leaders webinar session, inspirational keynote speeches and thought-provoking fireside chats with the SIGA CEO and Chairman & CEO of SIGA AMERICA, Emanuel Macedo de Medeiros.

FIGHTING INTERNATIONAL CRIME IN SPORT

The depth, scale and impact of corruption and criminal infiltration in sport is increasing globally. Facilitated by a permissive climate, fuelled by poor leadership, poor governance and lack of independent scrutiny increased presence of organised crime continues to cast an unnerving shadow over the sporting industry. The ramifications of COVID-19 have, and will, provide criminals with even greater opportunities to expand their operations and their impact throughout Sport. Here we will explore this troublesome landscape and ascertain if we, sports bodies, international organisations and governments are doing enough? If not, why? And what more needs to be done?

LANDSCAPE OF SPORT GOVERNANCE AND INTEGRITY – A VIEW FROM DOWN UNDER

Such is the level of concern at the growing threat to the integrity of Sport, the Governments of Australia and New Zealand have both commissioned reviews in recent years. Recommendations from the Australian review have been implemented including the creation of a single nationally coordinated organisation to address sport integrity issues in Australia (Sport Integrity Australia). Here we will discuss the challenges to sport integrity in Oceania and how the way forward might progress with SIA, and other concepts. The session will also explore the need for sport to appropriately address the health, safety and wellbeing of participants, including the need to combat bullying and abuse and other threats to positive sporting experiences.

08.00 CET THE IMPACT OF COVID-19 ON SPORT INTEGRITY: AN INTER-REGIONAL EXPERT DEBATE

Organised by the International Centre for Sport Security (ICSS) within the framework of the first Sport Integrity Week convened by the Sport Integrity Global Alliance (SIGA), the Inter-Regional Expert Debate is themed, "The Impact of Covid-19 on Sport Integrity: an Inter-regional Expert Debate".

The COVID-19 global pandemic has placed unprecedented challenges on international sport, where it sees massive economic loss to both sport and athletes alike. This has become a critical time in which sport faces enhanced integrity challenges on many fronts, including the ongoing manipulation of sport during this critical time.

This session has an expert panel, who will be discussing the current global challenges faced by sporting organisations and identify integrity solutions, to safeguard sport against organised crime, and other forms of manipulation.

AXISSTARS: A NEW STANDARD FOR ATHLETE PROTECTION OFF THE FIELD

As sport focuses on transparency & integrity, are the best interests of athletes considered? Organisations recognise them as valuable assets, they can get far wider reach through athletes' platforms than their own, but do their motivations support athletes long term?

Sports Stars live a lifetime in 15 years with many decisions to take about playing contracts, endorsement deals etc. How can they be sure they're taking the right advice and preparing adequately for the future?

Ex-footballer Louis Saha discusses the need and vision behind AxisStars, the private network supporting professional Sports Stars in their conversion from 'commodities' to an impactful community.

THE KING PROTEA IS THE SYMBOL OF TEAM SOUTH AFRICA, YET FEMALES CAN PLAY A CRUCIAL ROLE IN THE GOVERNANCE OF SOUTH AFRICAN SPORT

Sport governing bodies at international and national levels are increasingly under public scrutiny due to the lack of accountability, integrity and transparency. With principles such as respect, transparency, integrity, control, accountability and democracy; good governance should form the foundation of the executive body governing a sporting organisation.

Within the session, space will be given to introduce, commend and listen to the thoughts, experiences and challenges faced by South African sport leaders against a backdrop of themes of gender equality, anti-doping, corruption and the King IV code on good governance. Whoever said that sport is a man's world, has never met the 'African proteas' of sport.

THE NAME OF THE GAME: FOLLOW THE MONEY!

The world is entering a period of global economic austerity, and Sport, like all other industries, will be further impacted. As History tell us, in times of financial hardship governments and financial regulators tend to lose up their net, and criminality may often go unchecked. Against this background, how are sports governing bodies, governments, economic regulators, financial industry services and law enforcement coping with the fast-changing global financial landscape? What sort of financial supervision, due diligence and oversight is in place at national and international level, to safeguard sport from transnational money laundering, tax evasion and criminal infiltration?

FIGHT FOR YOUR RIGHTS:
DIGITAL PIRACY & IP PROTECTION

Sport needs income streams that sustain its activity and ensure its long-term development. The commercialisation of sports content, in particular audiovisual rights is the main income stream and the key pillar upon which the development model of the whole sporting industry has been based over the past three decades. Regrettably, this development model is under threat, victim of continued lack of legal protection at a national and international level.

In this Webinar, we will look into this vital problem, and ask the hard questions. How deep goes the rabbit hole as far as digital piracy and cannibalisation of sports media right are concerned? What is the real magnitude and ramifications of this illegal practice? How widespread is the problem? What needs to be done? How lethal this threat is to the economic viability of Sport and its ability to pursue its social, cultural and educational role to the fullest? Our panel of experts will examine these and other pressing issue, how to fight piracy on multiple platforms, and what needs to be done to preserve the rule of law, the integrity of sport and its long-term sustainability and further development.

CARIBBEAN: PROTECTING MEDIA RIGHTS AND SPORTS ECONOMIC VIABILITY

The advances in communication technology have revolutionized sport broadcast and media coverage globally. Copyright and other related rights have become the bedrock of revenue generation and competitive sport transformation to create a global billion-dollar industry. While sport is cyclical, it exists in an environment that is driven by on-demand content that offers the consumer whenever, wherever content. In this context, getting "a piece of the piece" and sustaining those gains may be under threat especially for small states where sport has significant Socio-economic implications.

This panel will consider the implications and realities of the business of sport, the role of traditional and new media, the question of copyright and "ownership" and the athlete and the viewership.

SPORTS BETTING INTEGRITY

10.30 CET WHAT IS ESPORTS AND HOW DOES IT FIT INTO SPORT?

There are enough similarities between Esports and sports to justify them being in the same broad category, but enough differences to justify the topic of this panel. When it comes to integrity, however, Esports behaves very much like traditional sports – it faces threats from cheating and doping to win and match-manipulation for betting fraud, but, in the absence of a meaningful overarching governing body, there are huge challenges for the industry and countering those integrity threats. Esports is approaching a $1 billion business and the betting turnover for 2020 will exceed $15 billion, so it's safe to say it should be at the table, especially when sports betting integrity is discussed.

MONEY TALKS: MATCH-FIXING & CRIMINAL INFILTRATION IN SPORT

Match fixing and criminal infiltration are amongst the most serious threats to Sport Integrity. They undermine the public's trust on the authenticity of sporting results and sporting truth on and off the field of play. The widespread examples of nefarious practice clearly demonstrate the need for immediate, concerted and global action to prevent it and combat at the root. In recent years we have seen efforts to try to safeguard sport evolve and grow in complexity and capacities. This panel will address this by exploring what exactly is being done to stop match fixing and illegal betting in sport, what progress has been made by international conventions in this field, what needs to be done and how will an impending economic crisis affect these efforts?

ESPORTS: THE FUTURE, NOW!

Over the last few years the Esports industry has expanded exponentially. It is no longer an emerging market, rather a fully-fledged global sporting industry that promises to continue to expand voraciously in the coming years. It has become a major global player that sports organisations and international sponsors are increasingly investing in. The pathway to success is clear to see. But, as with other industries, such rapid growth inevitably also brings the necessity to safeguard and protect the industry from threats to their integrity and standing. This session will explore the opportunities, challenges and developments of the Esports ecosystem as it prepares for the next wave of global emergence.

SPORTS BETTING INTEGRITY USA: THE WILD WEST?

The U.S. Supreme Court has repealed the ban on sports betting and opened the doors for state-to-state legalization. States, sports betting operators and sporting organizations have now entered uncharted territory, and the focus must shift away from the legalization benefits and towards the consequences for sport integrity. It is clear that the multi-billion dollar revenues will be both welcomed and much needed, but what is being done to ensure that the integrity of sports competitions are effectively protected against illegal betting, match-fixing, sports betting fraud and the pernicious influence of transnational organised crime? This panel of experts will shine a light on this hot topic, put Sport Integrity in the equation of sports betting USA and take a dive on SIGA AMERICA's strategic proposals for the sector.

MAINTAINING INTEGRITY THROUGH SPORTS TECHNOLOGY

This webinar will explore the use of science and technology and explore how innovation has changed the way decisions are made on and off the sports field. Technology, today is of critical importance in regards to enabling and informing ethical decisions and avoiding human errors. History shows that any wrong decision can profoundly alter matches, competitions and even careers. Advances in technology also extend beyond the field of play by way of analytics, data management and software applications that have changed how sport is managed ethically and transparently. This panel will assess technology in relation to risk, opportunities and the critical factors that lay at the intersection between technological advancement, integrity and fair play.

INTEGRITY REPUTATION: GETTING A COMPETITIVE ADVANTAGE IN SPORT

COVID or no COVID, corruption in Sport is headline news and dominates headlines whatever the news cycle competition. The negative connotations associated with such nefarious practices harm Sport, sponsors, broadcasters and supporters in equal measure. Other industries outside Sports' ecosystem recognise that corruption reduces competitive advantage by increasing costs and damaging sustainable growth. Sport stakeholders can learn from other industries that are in some respects more advanced in this regard. The SIGA Universal Standards, respective Implementation Guidelines and the world's first independent rating and verification system (commonly known as SIRVS) are the silver bullet the industry needs to enhance its governance and restore its credibility. Enough is enough! It's time for real, meaningful change! It's time for Universal Standards! It's time for SIRVS!

OPERATION NO MORE ABUSE IN SPORT:
USING TECHNOLOGY AND REAL WORLD TACTICS TO PREVENT RACISM AND OTHER FORMS OF ABUSE

Global sport has seen a dramatic rise in the past few years in incidents of racism, homophobia, anti-Semitism and other forms of abuse levelled at players, executives and other representatives of sports clubs. The free rein of the internet and particular social media platforms has allowed such incidents to flourish in recent times, often with impunity, with incidents of online abuse being proven to significantly impact player performances, club and league reputations and in turn the commercial side of sport. In this session, we will explore how AI and machine learning technology can be used alongside real world policing tactics to target and prevent such forms of abuse in sport, in turn creating an environment which can sustain player performances and maximise the role of sport to act as a force for good.

GLOBAL BUSINESS: PRESSING FOR SPORT INTEGRITY

Sport needs Sponsors and Sponsors need Sport. It's a perfect case of inter-dependence, which only works if all sides are fully committed to promote, preserve and protect one key, indispensable, vital ingredient: Integrity. One of the fundamental benefits and reasons for sport sponsorship is positive brand association. Sport provides the biggest and most accessible stage for global brands to vicariously engage with their audiences through shared experiences and values. So, when the integrity of that association is questioned, the validity of both brand and sport integrity also comes into question. Simply put, can and should sponsors do more to protect the integrity of sport through their investment decisions? Should we demand more? How can global brands pave the way to enhanced governance to protect the integrity and values of the sports they sponsor? Why are some sponsors less committed than others? Why broadcasters seem less active on this front than sponsors? Tune into this panel to find the answer!

SPORT INTEGRITY, TECHNOLOGY & INNOVATION: THE NEXT BIG THING

In recent years, the widespread introduction of technology has increased performance and worked towards ensuring greater integrity and fair play. Technology and innovation, at its best, are there to extend the limits of Sports performance, provide excitement and top-level entertainment, but also to ensure trust and fair play. However, technological advancement can be used to ensure Sport remains exciting and fair, safe and free from unscrupulous and unethical behaviours. How can they be used to prevent criminal practices and further strengthen Sport Integrity? How best can technology and innovation be harness? What are the benefits, risks and the rewards? This, and much more, is what will be discussed within this Webinar.

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY: RETHINKING INTERNATIONAL FOOTBALL FOR ALL

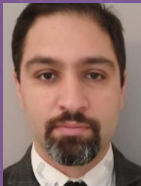

International football is often dominated by big tournaments and the most prominent nations. However, away from the elite and established form of the game, there are huge opportunities to level the playing field and improve access and inclusion. In a world where national identity is increasingly considered a more fluid concept than ever before, should everyone have the chance to represent whomever they choose? Organised by CONIFA, this panel will explore this question and more including approaches to building bridges through football, discussing the re-framing of disability, mixed gender tournaments, and providing opportunities for the disenfranchised 'underdogs' of international football to compete, collaborate, and create social impact.

INTEGRITY AND THE YOUNG PLAYER POWERED BY INDIA ON TRACK

Arguably the most important stakeholder in Sport Integrity is the player, and it is globally accepted that young athletes must be given access to education and resources around integrity from a very young age. With this in mind, this session will aim to look at the journey and relationship that young players in India have with the concept of integrity and if the sports ecosystem has succeeded in equipping the players with the required knowledge and access. What are the key challenges, still faced on the ground in implementing integrity practices, particularly learnings from sports like cricket and football? SAFEGUARDING CHILDREN FROM MORAL AND SEXUAL ABUSE IN SPORT

Sexual harassment and abuse occurs worldwide, in all sports and at all levels, and has a serious and negative impact in children and young people's physical and mental health. Due to the enormous increase on the occurrence of situations of moral and sexual abuse towards children and young athletes, there is an urgent need for bringing this issue into discussion, notably regarding the responsibilities of Sport organisations in preventing and responding to all forms of violence with a clear, strong, sustainable and effective approach towards safeguarding children in sport.

SPORT BETTING IN ESPORTS

How can industry regulators working with state regulators work together to create a safer and more commercially lucrative wagering environment with embedded integrity? Do you need more than that? It is a given that wagering will take place on competitive events, including Esports, where turnover is expected to exceed $15 billion in 2020 and, given it will happen regardless, the imperative we have to protect the Sport is hand in hand with the regulators imperative to keep punters safe and betting operators imperative to make a profit through truly competitive events free of manipulation and fraud. All parties working together and being able to call in law enforcement when necessary is the only way to ensure betting integrity. This fireside discussion will explore that dynamic and how it works (& sometimes doesn't!) in Esports.

HOLISTIC HEALTH: CHAMPIONS IN MIND AND BODY

The Secretary-General of the United Nations, António Guterres, emphasised the necessity of reducing stigma around mental health in his remarks at the Launch of the UN System Workplace Mental Health and Well-Being Strategy: "A Healthy Workforce for a Better World" in October 2018. This panel examines the impact and importance of the mental health of athletes, an area that has often been stigmatised and neglected, leading to devastating consequences. How can we be the agents of change and reset our global mindset to ensure mental, as well as physical well being is nurtured, on and off the track, field or pitch? What support do athletes need from Sports organisations on this issue and how can SIGA support? What will give us the mental jump to invent our normal again in a better way and prevent catastrophic mental health fallout? What was the impact of COVID-19 global pandemic in terms of mental health? What lessons have we learned and how best we can prepare for the future? Tune in to find out and participate!

SAFEGUARDING CHILDREN IN SPORT: A PERSONAL, LEGAL AND PSYCHOLOGICAL ACCOUNT

Physical education and Sport are important to help ensure the healthy development of children and young people. Participation in Sport should be encouraged, it should be a positive experience and children should have the right to feel safe and excited to take part. Unfortunately, this is not always the case. The surfacing of historical allegations of child sex abuse in children's Sport has reiterated just how important it is to ensure the safeguarding of children and youth in Sport. Within this session, the personal story of a sexual abuse survivor, the legal and policy framework and psychological aspects around child development and protection are shared.

A CLEAR AND PRESENT DANGER: SAFEGUARDING CHILDREN AND YOUNG PEOPLE IN SPORT

Global awareness of Sport-related incidents of mental and physical abuse of children, young or vulnerable people, both on-and-off the field the play is steadily growing. However, despite the increasing coverage of cases on television, streaming services and via social media, this issue still does not receive the attention it needs and fully deserves. Commonly concealed and refuted, this is leaving many still vulnerable and, in the long-term, severely affected. Until now, the sporting industry has been more reactive than proactive. This is no longer acceptable! In this panel, senior leaders will discuss the most critical issues currently facing Sport, examine best practice and point out what still needs to be done.

COACHING THE COACHES: THE GROWING FIELD OF COACH DEVELOPMENT

At all levels of Sport, the responsibilities and expectations on Sport coaches continues to grow. Coaches, and by extension Sport organizations, are held accountable for performance outcomes and athlete development, as well as the overall health and well-being of players. Keeping up-to-date, integrating new information, and maintaining a safe and effective training environment can be a daunting task. Not doing so can undermine the safety and integrity of sports programs. This session will explore the expanding system coach development that offers support and on-going professional development for coaches through both program design and the role of the coach developer.

OUT OF SIGHT, OUT OF MIND? HUMAN TRAFFICKING AND SMUGGLING IN SPORT

In the human trafficking and smuggling trade, men, women and children are defrauded, manipulated, kidnapped and lured into situations, often regarded as modern-day slavery, through various means, including Sports events. The numbers and incidents of human trafficking and smuggling associated with Sport are heavily refuted. Whilst the absence of data has raised concerns around how to quantify and tackle the criminal gangs that use Sports as a cover to carry out their activities, this cannot justify passive attitudes. This is not a new issue but progress remains slow. This panel promises will cast light of the problem, its causes and consequences, and help us determine precisely where we need to go to eradicate this issue.

RAISING THE BAR IN SUPPORT OF YOUTH SPORT COACHES

Youth sport is valued as an important facet of childhood. Programs promise and parents expect that youth sport participation will support positive youth development as well as provide age appropriate physical activity opportunities that build confidence, fitness and skills. Meeting these promises and expectations are a critical to the integrity of the sport system. Despite the high value placed on these experiences, the majority of youth programs rely on a volunteer system. This panel will explore how organizations and programs can build systems of education and support for volunteer coaches that align the National Standards for Sport Coaches as well as best practices of youth focused teaching and learning.
