EMANUEL MACEDO DE MEDEIROS

Global CEO, SIGA
 Chairman & CEO, SIGA AMERICA
 Executive Chairman, SIGA EUROPE
 Chairman & CEO, SIGA LATIN AMERICA

There is nothing more powerful than an idea whose time has come. Once planted in one's brain, nothing can slow the momentum.

In SIGA's case, this happened on a cold morning in early 2014, at a thought-provocative breakfast in Munich. As appetite and interest grew in the concept over the coming months, on 31 January 2017, after countless meetings with numerous organizations and senior leaders progress and momentum was unstoppable. What followed was a series of decisive steps strategically curated, a group of visionaries came together to form a critical mass that was committed to usher Sport into a new era and endorsed my proposal to form SIGA. The task was to transform the pre-existing informal grouping of like-minded organizations into a legal entity and then to revolutionise the Sport Ecosystem. That was precisely what was done, in London, eight years ago today.

To contemplate SIGA's evolution over the past eight years is nothing short of remarkable. Together, we have led the charge for Sport Integrity worldwide, cutting through resistance, challenging old mentalities, shifting paradigms, and relentlessly pressing for long overdue Integrity reforms.

There can be no doubt, the world has taken notice. Eight years after its constitution as a legal entity, SIGA's role and positive impact cannot be ignored. Powered by the strength of our convictions and the support of a growing global community of like-minded organizations and champions, SIGA marches on, stronger than ever.

Nothing was given to us, over this past eight years. Everything was earned.

Based in Geneva, with continental structures in Europe, North America, Latin America and, soon, in Asia, SIGA has legitimately earned its place on the map and consolidated its role as a respected global leader in the Sport Industry.

Building a truly Global Movement from scratch is not easy, but nothing that is easy is worth doing. Transforming vision into ambition, and ambition into achievement, is not for the light-hearted. It takes hard work, perseverance and an indomitable spirit, to maintain the course and to never deviate from either the mission or the principles that form its core value system and underpin the journey we have all been on to reach our current destination. Looking back, there is no doubt: we have come a long way. And credit must go to all those involved during the past eight years.

With legitimate pride in what we, together and united, have accomplished, we can, and we will, face the future with confidence, with excitement and with renewed resolve. We have, undoubtedly, made remarkable strides, and yet our journey is far from over. Our job is not complete. That's why, at a moment where Sport is more vulnerable than ever and when it faces critical challenges, old and new, with increasingly sophisticated and complex global threats, often involving transnational organized crime, we cannot rest on our laurels. There is so much more to be done. It is for these reasons that we need everyone's active engagement to deliver our vision to the fullest.

Together, with your support, sharing a common sense of purpose and unity, leading by example, we will continue to expand our membership base and global footprint. We will continue to grow. In numbers, representation and legitimacy.

We will continue to work tirelessly to achieve our aims. To transform adversities into opportunities for success. To deliver our reform agenda. To facilitate and support Sports' capacities and opportunities to be sustainable, inclusive and accessible and, crucially, to govern itself and operate under the highest integrity standards.

We will work to enable Sport to attain, solidify and deserve the trust, the respect and the passion, of those who play it, those who run it and those who love it.

Thank you all for being in this journey with us. I am grateful to you all and I can hardly imagine where we will be in another eight years' time when I consider all the members, the opportunities, the support, the capacities and the holistic conviction that SIGA has unified up to this point.

To conclude I would invite you all to be brave, to engage more and to help us deliver our ambitious Reform Agenda for Sport that will enable it to move ever closer to the vision we all share for current and future generations.

SIGA's mission is more relevant than ever, and I am excited to contribute to this ongoing journey toward a fairer and more ethical sporting world.

KATIE SIMMONDS

Chief Commercial Officer; Chair, SIGA Women

Happy 8th Birthday SIGA! I have had the privilege to work from inception on the establishment of the world's leading independent global integrity body for world sport. Over the last 10 years, working with SIGA's Global CEO, Emanuel Macedo de Medeiros, we have put together the pieces of a complex transnational puzzle to tangibly enhance the standards of sport. From gathering stakeholders representing the entire industry around a common mission - sport integrity - to building the organisation's internal governance, developing the SIGA Universal Standards on Sport Integrity, creating a global independent assurance system - SIRVS - testing that system, working with the pioneering sports organisations to be independently certified - we have achieved the unthinkable and set a new course that places governance at the podium.

It has not been an easy road and neither will it continue to be. If it was easy, others would have done it. What continues to drive us is the belief in the reforms that with these systems, which other industries have, will positively change the way business is operated in sport, and with that, create a more sustainable sector, underpinned by the values played on the pitch.

Looking at the year ahead, this is a year of fruition for SIGA when the seeds we have sown in Europe, US and Latin America with the creation of our continental subsidiaries will continue to grow. We will plant new roots in the UAE with SIGA ASIA as we expand to new territories and we will continue to grow our vital membership base and work with each of our members to pursue our singular mission and galvanise new champions. This is a year where we will set up our new commercial entity, SIGA SOLUTIONS, and provide the industry with tool kits on our standards, providing educational, training and capacity building programmes on these topics, and will support more sports organisations through our new independent assessment status review tool to prepare them for certification. It will also be the year that SIGAWomen doubles its impacts with more global mentors from more countries and more thought leadership events worldwide, with trusted partners coming on board to support our expansion.

One thing the past 8 years has taught me, is the need to be resilient. 8 years is a long time to work at an organisation and during this time, both SIGA and I have grown up. In our 8 year together I look forward to commercialising our assets to ensure our long term future and working with our trusted members and partners, many of whom are not just colleagues, but friends, that through our shared values, encourage us with their generosity of spirit, to continue this shared mission. So let's go straight ahead. Let's SIGA!

BETTINA TUCCI BARTSIOTAS

Former Director, UNICRI; Chair, SIGA Audit & Compliance Committee

The world needs positive examples. Athletes are role models, specially to young people. Participating in sports builds self-confidence, awareness and a sense of purpose. SIGA has always been in the forefront of promoting ethical behavior, integrity and transparency in sport. SIGA is a positive example.

ANDIDA BOUMA

Treasurer, European Aquatics

EUROPEAN AQUATICS.

SIGA in all aspects, but particularly the SIGA Universal Standards on Sport Integrity, has been very instrumental in bringing the European Aquatics governance to a higher level. While the process of the SIRVS audit is rigorous, it forced the organization to work on achieving a higher level of transparency from which we benefit substantially.

SIGA inspires me daily to believe in a more ethical, transparent, and value-driven approach to sport. The #TeamSIGA is much more than a team: it is a global community united by the passion to make a difference.

CECILIA PEREZ RIVAS

Former Justice Minister, Paraguay; Member, SIGA Permanent Committee on Anti-Corruption in Sport; Member of Paraguay's Permanent Mission, Organization of American States

Sport is effort, discipline, health, and passion; it moves masses and generates profits. And the profits that sport generates, and the gold mine it can become, must remain for and by the sport. To promote positive aptitudes, transform communities, overcome obstacles, generate equality, and be a factor of change.

We have seen how sport has been the reason for illicit activities, violation of norms and laws, leading to betting and addictive gambling, all in the name of the passion it generates and the money that moves around sports.

The work from SIGA is to unite against what this represents, against corruption, against the illegal use of its earnings, against sport being used as a tool for extortion, manipulation of wills, submission, and exploitation, ultimately leading to the destruction of people—men and women, children, groups, clubs, societies, and finally, the community of a nation.

At SIGA, we aim to keep sport shielded in what it should be: a factor of change, a tool for development and equality, and a catalyst for overcoming in pursuit of the true common good. That is why SIGA is important, and that is why we invite you here to join us in this global crusade.

TIAGO HORTA

Head of Integrity Latin America, Genius Sports

Integrity is the foundation upon which sport must be built, and I have no doubt that SIGA plays a fundamental role in promoting and protecting this principle. In a global scenario where challenges are constant—from result manipulation to the need for transparent governance—SIGA stands out as a reference in creating rigorous standards and mobilizing stakeholders around a common agenda. Its commitment to ethics and transparency strengthens sport as a pillar of trust for athletes, fans, and investors. Celebrating eight years of this journey is recognizing the transformative impact of SIGA on the reform and future of sport. Count on me always to add my efforts to yours!

VINÍCIUS SOUSA

Senior Director of Institutional Relations and Strategic Partnerships,
SIGA LATIN AMERICA

On the anniversary of the SIGA Constitution, we once again celebrate the global sports community's commitment to integrity. Since its inception, SIGA has been dedicated to transforming the sport landscape by promoting more transparent and ethical practices. While we have already achieved much, we know that there is still a long way to go. It is also an honour to see SIGA Latin America standing out and strengthening our sports ecosystem. The priority areas continue to be the professionalisation of football, the regulation of sports betting, and the strengthening of sports legislation. I side with SIGA on this crucial journey! Let us celebrate together the progress made and the promising future that still lies ahead.

JOÃO FREUDENTHAL

SIRVS Technical Lead

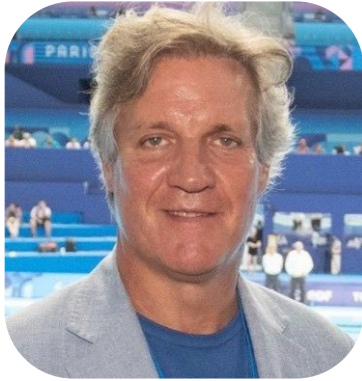

At SIGA, we are dedicated to upholding the highest standards of sports integrity through our SIRVS framework. Sport has the power to inspire, unite communities, and drive social change, but its credibility depends on transparency, good governance, and ethical conduct. Without strong integrity measures, the risks of corruption, financial mismanagement, and safeguarding failures threaten the very foundation of sport.

This is why we at SIGA invest significant technical expertise into developing robust, independent, and transparent standards. Our work ensures that organizations across the global sports ecosystem have clear, measurable criteria to uphold good practice in sports governance. By setting high benchmarks and holding stakeholders accountable, we help create a safer, fairer, and more sustainable future for sport at all levels.
